

The use of cell phone in commercial airplanes would be a complete disaster for those of use who are required to fly for our work. There is already too much stress in flying and cell phone users would add to that stress as they are generally far from quiet when using their phones, which would make it more than a little aggravating when trying to get work done while flying.